Brian Lott
Chief Communications Officer,
Mubadala Investment Company

Brian is the Chief Communications Officer of Mubadala Investment Company, responsible for stewardship of the Mubadala brand and management of the Group's corporate communications requirements.

Brian has over 25 years of experience in public relations. He joined Mubadala in 2012 after serving as Executive Director of Communications at the Advanced Technology Investment Company (ATIC), a Mubadala-owned business created in 2008 to diversify the Abu Dhabi economy through significant investments in the semiconductor industry.

Prior to ATIC, Brian worked at global public relations firm Burson-Marsteller, where he spent ten years providing strategic guidance to the firm's public affairs, corporate and technology clients. In his last four years at the firm, Brian was leading a global team of 150 professionals across 25 markets. He was the co-chair of Burson's key client relationship program, a portfolio of the firm's 20 most diverse blue-chip companies.

Brian began his professional career in Washington, D.C., working for two Members of Congress and serving as chief of staff, spokesman and campaign manager over 14 years, managing six successful re-elections over a period spanning three Presidential administrations. He is a published author and has worked as a journalist.

Brian holds a Bachelor of Arts degree with honors in journalism and mass communication from the University of Iowa, and has studied at the City University of London and the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard.
